

Sake Professional Course 2011, Japan

January 24-28, 2011

It is my pleasure to announce the 8th annual Sake Professional Course to be held in Japan. This is it, folks: the most important thing I do all year, and far and away the best possible sake education in existence. Three days of lecture and tasting, each evening capped off with dinner and fine sake, then two days spent visiting four sake breweries of different size and scale - punctuated again with fine sake and a great meal each evening. Of course, certification testing for a Certified Sake Professional is a part of the event.

Word travels fast, and most of the 22 spots have already been reserved. If you are interested, please send an email to me at info@sake-world.com right away. Feel free to ask any and all questions or make any inquiries about the course as well. To learn more about the schedule and details, check this out. (or type it out: www.sake-world.com/html.spcjapan.html)

Trust me when I say - for sake education - it does not get any better than this. Alternatively you can see what others have said in 17 pages of testimonials from satisfied graduates – many of which are well-known in the sake world for their individual efforts and success. (www.sake-world.com/Testimonials_for_John_Gauntner_29August10.pdf)

Those that are interested can make a reservation or inquire further about anything and everything about the course with an email to info@sake-world.com.